

ANIMAL NUTRITION SCHOLARSHIP FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS IN CALIFORNIA

Since the 1940's, the California Animal Nutrition Conference (CANC) has provided a venue for communication between industry, academia and government on topics related to animal nutrition. To enhance the opportunities for students to participate in the California nutrition community, CANC will award a $1000 scholarship to a graduate student studying animal nutrition in California.

YOU COULD QUALIFY

$1000 awards are made available for students currently enrolled in a graduate program in California. The graduate program and/or the student's area of research should be focused on animal nutrition.

CRITERIA

This scholarship will be awarded based upon merit of research conducted in the graduate program. The scholarship recipient will provide an oral presentation (10-12 minutes) of their research at the annual CANC meeting (May 27-28, 2009). A student is only eligible for the Scholarship OR the Poster Competition.

DEADLINE

Your application (attached) must be received by the CANC office no later than March 2, 2009.
